

3.1.4. We begin from the understanding that learning is our birthright and education is a fundamental human right. We aim to play, work and co-create a vision for societal transformation through education and learning, while being the embodied living model of the future now. We invite creative, visionaries, policy makers and those dedicated to systematic educational change to join the emerging global commons of learners, planetary citizens and change-leaders writing as evolutionary teachers and leaders in a global community that works together on and for designing and delivering a boarder and more relevant vision. Digital technology gives enormous opportunities for powerful and effective collaboration. They deal with both formal and informal learning and offer a new ways of thinking about learning provides.
